Audo Copenhagen Klampenborg Table Lamp

The Audo Copenhagen Klampenborg Table Lamp is a timeless light, originally designed in 1944 by Mogens Lassen. Klampenborg's sketches were lost in the archives in Copenhagen's Danish National Art Gallery before finally being manufactured and released in 2022. Lassen takes inspiration from architecture and aims to breathe life into all of his works. The minimalistic but striking geometric frame of the Klampenborg lamp can adapt to almost any interior, making a statement while providing you with diffused and ambient lighting. The light source is projected upwards into the rounded metal shade where it is reflected downwards again to produce an indirect illumination.

The integrated three-step dimmer allows you to easily personalise the power of the lighting output depending on your own needs, providing you with a way to easily adjust the atmosphere. The Klampenborg Table Lamp is available in three finishes: matte black, polished steel and brushed brass. Distinctive yet humble in its expression, the lamp is crafted to last and highlights Lassen's impressive attention to detail that characterises Klampenborg and many of his other works as a true design classic.
