a-emotional light Blum Wall Light

The Blum Wall Light is designed for a-emotional light by Spanish Designer Arturo Alvarez. Alvarez started designing at a young age, when he would build his own toys from natural objects. This fascination with nature persisted throughout his design career and is often seen referenced in his works. The design of the Blum Wall Light bears a few subtle nods to the natural world. The structure of the light has been formed by a single piece of steel thread, wound around itself until delicate, almost transparent spheres appear that seem as light as a cloud. The hand-spun form transforms steel into an object that appears to bloom with life.

The ethereal composition of The Blum Wall Light emits a soft glow that surrounds the shade while creating a subtle play of light against the wall that it sits on. This elegant display makes The Blum Wall Light perfect for creating ambient lighting in bedrooms. They can be displayed as multiples, lining the length of a hallway, or as a cluster to create a visual display in commercial settings.
