Northern Dokka Pendant

The Dokka Pendant was designed in 1954 and quickly became one of the most popular Nordic lights available. It was the first lamp from Norway to receive a Golden Medal award at the prestigious Triennale di Milano. Despite its growing popularity, it disappeared soon after the manufacturer discontinued the range. Northern re-launched Dokka in 2007, making it available once more to collectors of the classic design.

The Dokka Pendant is expertly crafted from durable metal and is available in a wide range of finishes. The choice of colourways lets the Dokka fit in seamlessly with a variety of interior decors and gives you the option to create eye-catching displays by installing clusters of pendants in various colours. The direct-downward light is perfect for task lighting above an office desk, or to illuminate a dining room table or kitchen island.
