HAY Fifty-Fifty Mini LED Table Lamp

The HAY Fifty-Fifty Mini LED Table Lamp was designed by Sam Weller, a British designer with a background in engineering and industrial design, who based the idea for this simple desk lamp design on stripping back a multi-purpose light to its fundamental elements. This simplistic stripped-back aesthetic cleverly conceals the engineering and mechanisms that make this desk lamp so unique. Sam Weller refers to his physics and engineering influence in his designs as he develops a functional table lamp with a counterweight system that creates equilibrium between the two parts. This means that the single cantilever arm is easy to tilt and pivot with one hand.

The adjustable nature of this lamp allows you to customise how the light interacts with the space. As the lamp is easily adjustable, so indeed is the light source itself. Featuring a touch-sensitive dimmer switch on the cable that is perfect for precisely positioning and controlling the light source. This timeless and functional desk lamp is available in a soft black finish, which has been carefully selected to enhance the natural simplicity of the design. This table lamp would be perfect for an office or desk space and adds an industrial feel to any space.
