Fabbian Armilla Table Lamp

The Fabbian Armilla Table Lamp was designed by Lorenzo Truant and is crafted from blown glass with metal detailing. Designed by Lorenzo Truant, this lamp was inspired by the Renaissance, the design stems from a time when the first planets and stars were illustrated and studied by few. The silhouette of the Armilla consists of a spherical diffuser that is produced by blowing glass on a round mould, with intricate metal rings being fixed onto the melted glass at the end of the manufacturing process. These rings are available in either gold-plated, chrome-plated or burnished metal with a matching base.

Armilla is a beautiful way to illuminate your living room, bedroom, reading nook, or even dining space. Similarly, it can be an enchanting addition to commercial spaces, specifically in the hospitality sector such as in restaurants, bars and hotels. This table lamp expertly conceals the light source, producing a seamless diffused glow which is welcoming and warm, ready to ease you into relaxation.
