Ray Table Lamp by Flos

The Ray table lamp by designer Rodolfo Dordoni was designed in 2006. Dordoni's inspiration came from a lighthouse which is clearly reflected in the silhouette of the lamp which consists of die-cast, polished, chrome-plated zamak alloy shade supported by a welded steel tube structure, reminiscent of a pylon.

Available with a white or black shade in aluminium, or a hand-blown glass shade, the Ray table lamp provides a soft ambient glow which can be adjusted to suit with the dimmer switch included on the cable. The Ray table light suits a number of applications including additional ambient lighting in a living room or bedroom, or as a reading light at a bedside or in a study.

The Ray collection also includes a floor lamp in two sizes and a pendant light.
