Santa & Cole Diana Table Lamp

The Diana table lamp was designed by architects Alfonso Mila and Federico Correa, with the help of Alfonso's younger brother Miguel, after taking on a commission to revamp the mayor's office in Barcelona. The mayor had just successfully bid for the Olympics in 1992, and knowing that the office was expected to be visited by numerous members of the international political community, he wanted to remind them of the city's high standards in design. The creation of the table lamp was one of many as part of this project and is aptly named after the mayor's wife Diana.

The Diana table light is available in two sizes, a smaller Diana Menor and a larger Diana version. The table light is defined by a slim silhouette with a metal body, available in shiny gold or satin nickel, and a linen lampshade, available in black or white. The classic simplicity of this table lamp makes it perfect for many settings, including homes and offices and will add a touch of history to any space. You can also pair with the Santa & Cole Diana floor lamp for a seamless lighting scheme throughout your interior.
